

State Route 6 Corridor Study Public Meetings Scheduled For Week of September 18, 2006

Stuck in traffic on State Route 6?

The Atlanta Regional Commission (ARC) has initiated a corridor study for State Route 6 (also known as Camp Creek Parkway, Thornton Road, C.H. James Parkway, Jimmy Lee Smith Parkway, and Jimmy Campbell Parkway) which is a major regional travel corridor. This comprehensive study will evaluate the performance of the various transportation modes (cars, buses, trucks, and trains) using State Route 6 and make recommendations for improvements in safety, traffic flow, improved land use, and sustained economic development and business vitality along the corridor.

Four public meetings have been scheduled to introduce the project and receive feedback and input from the public about the study. Please plan to attend one of these important meetings, to discuss the future of State Route 6 and how improvements could affect your mobility along the corridor. The dates, locations and times are identified below:

State Route 6 Study Area

The State Route 6 corridor study area covers a 32.35 mile section from SR 61 (Paulding County) to I-85 South (Fulton County). The corridor crosses numerous jurisdictional boundaries including the cities of College Park, East Point, Douglasville, Austell, Powder Springs, Hiram and Dallas and the counties of Fulton, Cobb, Douglas and Paulding. Transportation demands along State Route 6 have increased significantly in recent years. Increased truck and commuter traffic, coupled with existing and new commercial development, have made travel along State Route 6 increasingly difficult during peak hours.

STATE ROUTE 6 PROJECT LOCATION MAP

Public Involvement

One of the primary goals for the State Route 6 project is maintaining early and timely contact with the public at all levels. The Connect Six logo and slogan was developed to raise awareness of the study and its six major components: transportation, land use, safety, economic vitality, freight, and public involvement. An ongoing community outreach process will offer several opportunities for the public to provide feedback during the entire planning period. Please get and stay involved!
